Environmental Studies

Home of the French Academy in Rome since 1803, Villa Medici has been the setting for residencies for many legendary French artists. As part of a program to redesign the landmark's 16th-century suites, Galerie 2026 Creative Mind Edgar Jayet was commissioned to revamp a guest room. "It's on top of one of the towers and is like a little jewel," says the designer and furniture maker, who devised the space as a place of study and reflection. Working with interior architecture firm Rinck, Jayet enriched the accommodation with botanical references in his collaborations with former laureates of the Fondation Bettencourt Schueller craftsmanship grand prize. "My biggest goal was to be out of fashion—something that talks about the building's history but will work into the future." villamedici.it —JACQUELINE TERREBONNE

A guest room at the Villa Medici in Rome designed by Edgar Jayet is composed of works by French artisans: lacquerist Nicolas Pinon, silversmith Nicolas Marischael, and wallpaper artist François-Xavier Richard of Atelier d'Offard.

Monumental Achievement

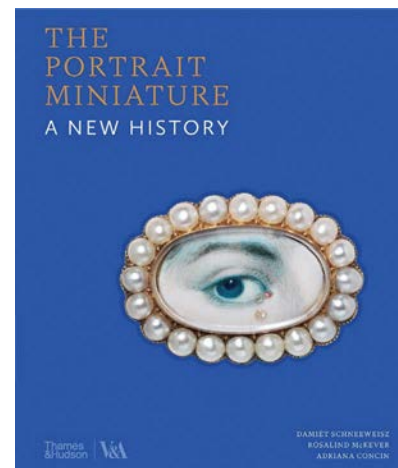

Two of Argentina's great creative figures coalesce in the new Lola Mora Cultural Center, the long-awaited home for six large-scale sculptures by its pioneering namesake and celebrated Argentine architect César Pelli's final project. Pelli Clarke & Partners conceived the 32,300-square-foot museum at the base of the Andes, amid dense subtropical yunga forest in San Salvador de Jujuy. The building's silhouette evokes a sculptor's chisel, with a narrow entrance that widens into an airy glass-walled exhibition hall beneath a sweeping cantilevered roof. There, against verdant mountain scenery, Mora's restored Carrara marble figures reunite for the first time in over a hundred years following their removal by officials from the Palace of the Argentine National Congress in 1921 and scattered them across the region. cclm.jujuy.gob.ar —RYAN WADDOUPS

Image Projector

While the 21st century favors the selfie, it's hardly the first era to value a handheld depiction. Portrait miniatures carried much the same influence from their beginnings in the 15th century. The upcoming release The Portrait Miniature: A New History (Thames & Hudson) gives a detailed look at how these artistic accomplishments had the power to forge allegiances between royal courts and solidify marriage proposals over the centuries. Published in association with the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, the volume renders many works from its collection close to their actual size, which reinforces the allure of these intimate treasures. thamesandhudsonusa.com —J.T.

SLEEPING BEAUTY

Much of the craftsmanship that goes into the made-to-order beds by Savoir is never actually seen, with each mattress taking over 30 hours to construct by hand. But one of its latest editions,

Claudia, puts the artisanry that has defined the brand for over a century on full display. In a nod to rococo classicism, its stately silhouette rises into a lofty crest before dipping into fluid, scrolling curves.

To complement this beautiful form, craftspeople upholster the headboard in a Lelièvre fabric, while finishing the base and contrast piping in Loro Piana's sumptuous Altai wool. savoirbeds.com —R.W.

FLUID FORM

Conceived as part of Audemars Piguet's Atelier des Établisseurs initiative—a new project bringing together the maison's artisans with independent workshops to produce exceptional, limited edition timepieces—the pebble-shaped Établisseurs Galets draws inspiration from the water-smoothed stones of Lac de Joux near Le Brassus, Switzerland, where the house has been headquartered since 1875. Assembled and adjusted entirely by a single master watchmaker, the 18K-yellow-gold piece enhanced with vivid natural turquoise is a triumphant feat of artistic lapidary, high jewelry, and creative collaboration. audemarspiguet.com —L.R.

Pink Perfection

Since 1968, the four-leaf clover motif of the Alhambra collection by Van Cleef & Arpels has stood as a symbol of luck. Over the years, it's been expertly crafted from onyx, carnelian, mother-of-pearl, guilloché gold, and even Sèvres porcelain. Now the maison unveils the icon's latest iteration in a wondrous, translucent pink enamel, with vibrant renditions available as earrings, a bracelet, a pendant, and two necklaces.

LA RÉSERVE FIRENZE | Florence, Italy

Tucked into Florence's historic Oltrarno district—an enclave famed for its artisanal workshops and Bohemian vibe, La Réserve debuts its first Italian address. Opening on October 16, La Réserve Firenze features six generously scaled private apartments inside a magnificent 15th-century palazzo restored by lauded French design duo Gilles & Boissier in partnership with La Réserve founder Michel Reybier. The passion project of the villa's owners Olivia and Grégory Marciano, the hotel presents a selection of the Paris couple's personal art trove, providing an intriguing dialogue with ornate frescoes and architectural details. "It's our way of sharing something of ourselves, and of Florence, with the people who stay," says Olivia Marciano. lareserve-firenze.com —L.R.

FOUQUET'S MYKONOS | Mykonos, Greece

Having already established itself with hotels in some of the world's most beguiling destinations, French-owned Barrière Group made its first foray into Greece with the opening of Fouquet's Mykonos, a Cycladic oasis overlooking the crystal-clear waters of Paraga Beach on the island's southern coast. Encompassing 60 suites and three private villas, the resort cultivates an energetic spirit for diners at all-day restaurant Éole and Roka, an oceanfront beach club serving Japanese cuisine. Those looking for a more low-key ambience can retreat into the Rock Spa, a tranquil hideaway with cutting-edge treatments infused with local ingredients and a stunning indoor pool carved directly into the rock. hotelsbarriere.com —J.S.

HÔTEL PALAIS DE LA MÉDITERRANÉE | Nice, France

An icon of Côte d'Azur in its heyday, Hôtel Palais de la Méditerranée can claim F. Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald, Josephine Baker, and Maurice Chevalier among its esteemed guests. The 1929 Art Deco landmark on Nice's palm-lined Promenade des Anglais sparkles once again after its top-to-bottom transformation by Linda Boronkay. Drawing on extensive archival research, the Hungarian designer recast its public spaces, 145 rooms, and 28 suites in sun-washed shades of blue, gold, green, and terra-cotta. Art commissions abound: Olivia Cognet created bespoke ceramics, Garance Dupont fashioned restaurant Zouzou Riviera's 59-foot-long mosaic bar, and Marion Flament contributed lustrous, stained glass screens evocative of Mediterranean light. Together, they returned a storied hotel to the radiant mystique of the Riviera's golden age. hyatt.com —R.W.

"Gustave Fayet: Collector-Designer" | OCTOBER 9-MARCH 8, 2027

French artist and designer Gustave Fayet treated the act of collecting art not as a personal passion but as an integral part of his own creative process. The latest installment in the museum's "Icons of Modern Art" series reunites works that have not been shown together in a century. "Gustave Fayet: Collector-Designer" pairs masterpieces from his trove, such as seminal canvases by Paul Gauguin and Vincent van Gogh, including the latter's famed Self-Portrait with Bandaged Ear (1889), with 375 of his own rarely seen paintings, ceramics, rugs, and more. fondationlouisvuitton.fr
